Postdoctoral Clinician – Psychological Assessment

Full-Time | South Hadley, Massachusetts | $55,000 Annual Salary

Join an Experienced Psychological Assessment Team

Advanced Behavioral Health Group (ABHG), based in South Hadley, Massachusetts, is seeking a Postdoctoral Clinician in Clinical Psychology to join our psychological assessment and testing team. ABHG is a small, established behavioral health practice serving children, adolescents, and adults throughout Massachusetts. Our practice builds on the longstanding clinical foundation of James Levine and Associates, a respected behavioral health agency that served the community for many years. Under new ownership and leadership, we have maintained that commitment to high-quality clinical care while continuing to grow and develop our services.

Our postdoctoral training year is designed for a doctoral graduate seeking advanced supervised experience in comprehensive psychological assessment, psychoeducational assessment, and diagnostic evaluation. Postdoctoral clinicians develop increasing independence and expertise in clinical interviewing, test selection and administration, interpretation and integration of assessment data, differential diagnosis, report writing, feedback, and individualized recommendations.

About the Training Experience

Psychological assessment is the primary focus of the postdoctoral year. Postdoctoral clinicians work with children, adolescents, and adults presenting with a broad range of cognitive, developmental, academic, behavioral, and emotional concerns. The typical assessment caseload is 2–3 comprehensive evaluations per week, allowing time for thoughtful case conceptualization, integration of findings, report writing, feedback, supervision, and professional development.

Training includes:

- Two hours of individual supervision per week, with additional supervision as needed
- Group supervision and case consultation opportunities
- Didactic and professional development opportunities
- Ongoing consultation with experienced psychologists
- Progressive independence as clinical skills and competencies develop

Training experiences are individualized based on the postdoctoral clinician's previous experience, interests, competencies, and professional goals.

Additional opportunities may include:

- Forensic psychological assessment
- Threat assessment and management
- Outpatient psychotherapy, including telehealth services

- Clinical consultation
- Professional Development Presentations

Flexibility Within a Small-Practice Setting
One of the advantages of training at ABHG is the combination of structured supervision and professional development with the flexibility of a smaller practice. Postdoctoral clinicians have the option to provide appropriate clinical services via telehealth and may complete report writing remotely, allowing for greater flexibility in structuring the workweek around clinical responsibilities. Our psychologists manage their own cases while remaining part of a collaborative team where consultation and support are readily available. Postdoctoral clinicians work closely with experienced psychologists and receive individualized supervision. Our administrative team assists with referrals, or insurance authorization, billing, and other administrative functions so that clinicians can focus on clinical work and professional development.

Primary Responsibilities

- Conduct comprehensive psychological and psychoeducational evaluations with children, adolescents, and adults
- Conduct diagnostic interviews with patients and collateral informants
- Select, administer, score, and interpret psychological assessment measures
- Integrate testing results with clinical history, behavioral observations, records, and collateral information
- Develop diagnostic formulations and differential diagnoses
- Prepare clear, integrated psychological assessment reports
- Develop individualized, evidence-informed recommendations
- Conduct feedback sessions with patients, parents, and caregivers
- Consult with referring providers and other professionals as appropriate
- Maintain timely and ethical clinical documentation
- Participate in individual supervision, group supervision, case consultation, and didactic activities

Qualifications

- Doctoral degree (PhD or PsyD) in Clinical or Counseling Psychology from an APA-accredited program, or equivalent training consistent with Massachusetts licensure requirements
- Completion of an APA-accredited internship, or equivalent internship experience consistent with licensure eligibility
- Eligibility to complete supervised postdoctoral experience toward independent psychology licensure in Massachusetts
- Experience with psychological and cognitive assessment
- Strong interest in comprehensive assessment and differential diagnosis
- Strong clinical writing and communication skills
- Ability to work with increasing independence while appropriately utilizing supervision
- Experience with children and adolescents preferred

What We Offer

- $55,000 annual salary
- Flexible start date
- Manageable assessment caseload of 2–3 cases per week
- Up to two hours of individual supervision per week, based on training needs
- Group supervision and case consultation
- Didactic and professional development opportunities
- Advanced training in comprehensive psychological and psychoeducational assessment
- Experience evaluating children, adolescents, and adults
- Opportunities for forensic assessment and threat assessment/management
- Opportunities for outpatient therapy and telehealth
- Remote report-writing flexibility
- Strong and consistent referral base
- Administrative support for scheduling, authorizations, and billing
- Supportive, collegial small-practice environment
